Career Development

seminar series

The Career Development series is a newly formed seminar series aimed at providing students and post-docs with insights into different career options and promoting interdisciplinary networking Speakers will discuss about their professional career paths inside and outside academic institutions including R&D, consulting, publishing, management, marketing, entrepreneurship, etc.

*Medical neuroscience students will get credit points for seminar attendance

We encourage PhD students and post-docs to contact us and suggest career areas that they would be interested in; we will try to invite speakers working in that specific areas!
